U. S. REARMING 3 FRENCH DIVISIONS

Americans Urged To Leave China

NANKING, Nov. 5—The U. S. embassy today urged Americans to prepare to leave East Central China because of the danger of southward advances by Chinese Communist armies.

Simultaneously, steps were taken to evacuate approximately 1,000 American women and children who are dependents of U. S. service personnel in China.

Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, commander of the joint U. S. military advisory group in China, announced that dependents of the personnel of his command will be evacuated as transportation becomes available.

The general said officers and men of his group will remain in China.

All Americans in the Nanking-Pukow and adjacent areas of the Middle Yangtze Valley were circulated by the U. S. embassy in Nanking with a letter that stated:

"Military developments in North China make it appear possible that hostilities may spread farther south, with the result that transportation facilities between Nanking and its environs and the sea may be disrupted.

"Also, with the approach of winter and an increasingly acute shortage of food supplies and fuel, those remaining in Nanking and its environs may be subjected to undue hardships.

"Accordingly, it is suggested that unless you have a compelling reason to remain you consider the desirability of evacuation while normal transportation facilities remain available."

The U. S. consul general in Shanghai distributed the same letter among American citizens in Anhwei and Kiangsu provinces in the Lower Yangtze region. Shanghai, China's greatest city, lies in Kiangsu province.

This action in the Yangtze Valley region follows similar advice given early this week to American citizens living in North China.

Britons and French citizens in North China likewise have been urged by their consulates to plan evacuation.

Official American sources in Nanking revealed that the present voluntary evacuation program for dependents of U. S. servicemen in China will be placed shortly on a compulsory basis. This will mean, it was said, that some 1,000 American women and children will be ordered to return to the United States.

AS FINAL ELECTION RETURNS brought the story of a general GOP defeat, a prankster pins a funeral wreath on the entrance to the Republican National headquarters in Washington.

THEORY ON WHY DEMOCRATS WON:

GOP Talked To Mr. Big; But Little Guy Turned Vote

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — Hard work and enthusiasm at the lower levels—right down to the individual precinct worker himself—may have been the deciding factor in the smashing, stunning election victory the Democrats scored Tuesday.

The Republicans just didn't get out the vote.

On the basis of 1940 vote and population figures, some half-million to three-quarters of a million Ohioans who could have been expected to cast ballots failed to do so.

Total vote Tuesday was about three million—a half million less than predicted by the secretary of state, 300,000 less than cast in 1940, more than 200,000 less than cast in 1944, and some 700,000 less than a 12 percent population increase would indicate if the 1940 trend had been followed.

Any kind of a shift from Tuesday's trend among that multitude of alleged citizens who did not avail themselves of their greatest American right might have upset the result and wiped out the scant 17,000 margin by which President Truman carried the state.

IT MIGHT have saved a few of the eight Republican congressmen who lost their jobs, thus changing the complexion of the Ohio delegation from a 19-to-4 Republican margin to a 12-11 Democratic one.

It might have saved a state senator here and a state legislator there—enough to retain control of a senate which last year was 32-4 and a house that was 123-16 in favor of the GOP. Now the Dems will have a 17-16.

Labor Law Due For Tone-Down, Observers Say

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — Toning-down of the Taft-Hartley law looms today as a number one project of the 81st Congress as victorious Democrats begin to shape their plans.

Odds appear to be against outright repeal of the bill despite the announcement of Rep. Lesinski, (D) Mich., who will be House labor committee chairman, that he will drive to knock the law out of the statute books.

Early action appears likely also on expanding the Taft-Elliott-Wagner housing bill, broadening civil rights legislation, extending Social Security, continuing rent control and boosting the minimum wage floor, probably to about 75 cents.

On the oil Tidelands issue President Truman probably still will hit snags because of sectional divisions within his own party.

One of the quickest legislative changes is expected to come on the displaced persons bill. A bipartisan group including Sen. McGarath, (D) R. I., which expected to liberalize the measure even with a Republican Congress now are believed to face a still easier task under Democratic control.

Rep. Spence, (D) Ky., who will become chairman of the House banking committee, announced that he will launch a fight to re-enact price control as a weapon against inflation.

margin in the senate and a 70-65 margin in the house.

It might have saved Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel, and Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins, who were swept out of office by the Democratic broom.

It might even have saved his gubernatorial chair for white-headed Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, despite the immense popularity of bushy-haired, smiling Frank J. Lausche.

There were other factors, of course. Undoubtedly a concerted drive by labor forces against the party of the Taft-Hartley Act was foremost among them.

And a great American tradition also must not be overlooked. That is the spirit of fair play. Perhaps too many unkind things were said of the smiling President. John Q. Public apparently believes that you should not kick a man—even a President—when he's down.

BUT WITH it all, it's the precinct worker of the Democratic Party who deserves the credit. State Chairman Eugene Hanhart is willing to take his hat off to the little man.

The fervor of top level politicians of both parties is an all-encompassing flame. But the Democrats did a better job in having it set fire to the county organization.

The Democratic county organizations in turn did a better job of selling their program, and their candidates, to the man on the street.

The Republicans did all right in selling their program to Mr. Big.

But they apparently forgot that, in the anonymity of the voting booth, the ballot of the banker and his barber amount to exactly the same thing—one and only one ballot.

Cincinnati May Send 2nd Woman To Electric Chair

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5 — Will Cincinnati send another woman to the electric chair for a poison murder?

Mary Clay Watts is being tried today on first degree murder charges in the death of her 11-year-old daughter, Barbara Ann. The state says the child was poisoned.

Prosecutor Carson Hoy certainly did not indicate in his opening statement that he would be satisfied with a recommendation of mercy.

A verdict of guilty without such a recommendation from the jury makes a death sentence mandatory.

The first and only woman to die in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair was Anna Marie Hahn, another Cincinnati who was executed Dec. 7, 1938, for the poison murder of one of her aged boy friends, Jacob Wagner.

In his opening statement, Hoy charged:

That Mrs. Watts had invited friends to the girl's funeral before she died May 15;

That Mrs. Watts' only daughter was "a healthy, normal child" until she became violently ill Feb. 4;

That Mrs. Watts did not call a doctor until angry neighbors forced her to, and then remarked "if she wanted to let her lie there and die, that was her business";

That Mrs. Watts "wanted Barbara Ann out of the way so she could continue life alone with her new boy friend";

That Mrs. Watts wanted Barbara Ann's $11,000 trust fund and $3,500 insurance, including a $2,500 policy taken out in 1947;

That Mrs. Watts' husband, whose body was exhumed, also died of poison, and that poison was found in Barbara Ann's body.

The comely widow showed little emotion as the prosecutor made his accusations to the jury of nine women and three men. However, she put her head down and sobbed when her attorney, Loyal S. Martin, said he would prove that Mrs. Watts' entire life "was one of nothing but love and sacrifice for her family."

He added:

"Her whole life will be her complete defense to the charge."

Eccentric Held After Killing Brooklyn Boy

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—An eccentric bachelor faced homicide charges today following a shotgun rampage in Brooklyn in which police said he killed one boy and fired at several others.

Police identified the prisoner as Wallace York, 51, who has kept to himself for 10 years in the shack located in a ravine. The dead boy, who tried vainly to run, is Stanley Swinick, 15, of Brooklyn. Hit in the back, he staggered a few feet and collapsed.

Another boy, Michael Luca, 14, also of Brooklyn, was struck in the thigh by two pellets and taken to Kings County hospital. A third youth, Italo Galeotafiore, 15, also was hit. But pellets bounced off a heavy leather jacket he wore.

Piles of encyclopedias and reference works on the stock market claim that, from 1930 to 1937, he was owner of the "Barometer Advisory Service."

Police said he even pulled his own teeth and mixed chemicals in his one-room shack to make medicines in time of illness.

VICTORIOUS DEMOCRATIC candidate for governor of Michigan, socialite G. Mennen Williams is served a cup of coffee by his wife, Nancy, in Detroit. Heir to a shaving cream fortune, Williams defeated the incumbent Kim Sigler by an almost two to one majority.

ASHVILLE YOUTH INJURED

Funeral Set For Sunday For Electrocuted Man

Funeral services have been set for 2:30 p. m. Sunday for Donald Benjamin Duvall, 23, of Harrison Township, who was electrocuted Thursday by 40,000 volts at the Picway plant of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Company officials said young Duvall accidentally touched a switch while repairing an oil circuit breaker which sent the entire 40,000-volt power load through his body.

A fellow worker, Donald Wilson, 20, of Ashville Route 2, suffered minor injuries in his attempt to escape. He was repairing an adjoining circuit breaker, it was reported.

Mr. Duvall was born Feb. 23, 1925, in Duvall, the son of Benjamin and Dorothy Kuhlwein Duvall. He leaves his widow, Martha, and a sister, Patricia, at home.

SERVICES will be held in Lockbourne Lutheran church with the Rev. C. A. Holmquist officiating. Burial will be made in Fernwood cemetery by E. F. Schlegel funeral home of Ashville.

Friends may call at the G. W. Clellan residence at 6130 South Parsons avenue, Columbus, after 6 p. m. Friday.

The mishap which resulted in the victim's death forced the shutdown of the entire power plant and caused a power failure in the entire area serviced by the unit.

Included in the communities affected were Circleville, Chillicothe, Hillsboro and Jackson. Power was off almost one hour while partial service northward was given through Walnut plant near Grove City.

A company spokesman said four other men were working on

President Sleeps In Chillicothe

A crowd of 1,000 persons—many of them from Circleville—was on hand in Chillicothe at midnight last night to greet President Truman when his train stopped there for an eight-minute service halt.

However, President Truman was asleep and made no appearance despite repeated calls of the crowd.

Even the cry of: "We got up for you; now you get up for us" failed to rouse the obviously-exhausted chief executive.

Crack Units Getting Best In America

West European Defense Is Eyed

LONDON, Nov. 5—The French army, under direct impetus from U. S. Secretary of State Marshall, is being rearmed and reactivated with U. S. aid toward a goal of 240,000 to 360,000 men in full fighting trim.

Already, the three French army divisions assigned to the French occupation zone in Germany are being brought to full war efficiency—and their equipment is the finest that the arsenal of the United States can produce.

A highly authoritative diplomatic source revealed that the U. S. government secretly agreed to re-equip and help maintain these three French divisions as a "token" to prove America's determination to assist the Western European Union in defense against any aggression.

The diplomatic source, which revealed the measures to reactivate the three divisions, said that the most modern American tanks and other weapons are being utilized.

They are being sent into the French zone not only from the U. S. zone but direct from the United States as well.

MARSHALL agreed with the move wholeheartedly in response to urgent appeals from French government officials.

The latter asked for American help in the rebuilding of French armed forces. They wanted sufficient aid at once to re-equip at least 20 or 30 divisions—from 240,000 to 360,000 men.

Marshall explained that this could not be done until Congress has approved a vast military aid program for Western Europe. But he did offer to take care of the three divisions in France as a "token" in proof of America's determination to restore France's military power as a bulwark in defense of Western European civilization.

Re-equipment of these three divisions is understood to be well under way.

They represent half the total effective combat strength of the French army available at present. (Continued on Page Two)

'New Champ' Gets Banner Welcome In Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—Harry Truman came back to Washington today for four years and 76 days as president—an even four years more than the political "prophets" could spare him.

As the victory special brought the President into Union Station thousands of Americans stormed the wide concourse in front of the terminal, fighting for vantage points from which to welcome the "New Champ."

Bands shriiled out "I'm Just Wild About Harry" and "Back In The Saddle Again."

More than half a million people lined the traditional victory route from the station up Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House.

The weather, November to the contrary, prophetically matched the balmy April day of 1945 when Mr. Truman solemnly donned the

Will-O-Wisp Thug Gets $5,000

DAYTON, Nov. 5—Dayton's will-o'-the-wisp bandit was sought with renewed vigor by police today following his latest escapade which netted him $5,000.

The dapper, well-dressed gunman held up a Dayton grocer and his sister as they left their west side store and prepared to enter their car. At the point of his long-barrelled revolver he relieved them of a leather bag containing $4,600 in cash and $500 in checks.

Former Local Man Among 19 Airmen Dead In Crash

Francis Tilton, 25, formerly of Circleville, was one of 19 men killed Wednesday in the crash of a B-29 bomber when it plunged into the sea off the Azores enroute from England to Florida.

A native of New Hampshire, he was the husband of the former Polly Briggs, of New Holland. She was at one time a teacher in Circleville's High Street school.

Mrs. Tilton notified her family early Thursday of her husband's death after receiving a wire from McDill Field authorities.

She and her two-year-old son, Eric, were living in Tampa, Fla., and were awaiting the arrival of Tilton who was scheduled to land at McDill field Thursday evening.

EARLY RELEASE of the news did not give his rank in the Army Air Force, but stated he served as a flight engineer aboard the plane.

The crash killed 19 of the men aboard and severely injured another of the crewmen. The crew had been stationed in England for three and one-half months on a training tour.

Authorities said the big bomber dove into the ocean about 500 miles off shore after taking off from the Lagens air base.

4 In Family Die In Blaze

STUEBENVILLE, Nov. 5 — Four members of a family were burned to death and another member burned seriously today when fire destroyed their farm home in nearby Knoxvile.

The dead were Bate Cooper, 75; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Grant Cooper, 40, and her two children, a son aged about 10, and a three-year-old daughter.

Grant Cooper was seriously burned and was taken to an East Liverpool hospital. He said he awoke to find the house ablaze and that his efforts to rescue the other members of the family were fruitless.

All The Glory, But No Work

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — Adj. Gen. Chester W. Goble says that National Guardsmen—officers and men—who are unable to continue active training may retain their status and rank by transfer to the inactive National Guard.

General Goble reported that the inactive guard, in existence before the war, had been reactivated by the National Guard Bureau in Washington.

3 Planes Said Missing Off Northwest Coast

SEATTLE, Nov. 5—Two Navy bombers and a civilian plane carrying at least 36 people were missing and presumed lost today in the storm-swept reaches between Northwestern Washington and Bristol Bay, Alaska.

Fifteen passengers and two crew members are lost on a Pacific Alaska Air Express DC-3 which disappeared between Sitka and Ketchikan.

A four-engined Navy bomber with 12 men aboard is presumed down in the area of Bristol Bay.

A Navy long-range bomber with seven or nine men aboard is lost off the northwestern coast of Washington.

At Anchorage, Fred B. Powell, investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, said search efforts have failed to yield any trace of the civilian plane.

The craft last reported by radio at 10:10 a. m. (EST) yesterday that it was over Cape Spencer. It was due at Annette Island, Ketchikan's airport after taking off from Yakutat on a flight from Anchorage.

The Navy bomber lost in the Bristol Bay area was identified as a PB4Y-2 Privateer. It has not been reported since it left Kodiak Wednesday.

The other bomber was identified as a Neptune P3V taking part in maneuvers off the Washington coast. It last was reported yesterday morning.

ent for Western European defense.

But they are considered crack divisions, with well-trained and loyal troops under the command of Gen. Augustin Guillaume.

Along with three other combat divisions scattered throughout France and North Africa, they represent all that France has to hold the Rhine should a sudden war come.

IN ADDITION to agreeing to re-equip and maintain the three French divisions in Germany, the U. S. government has ordered reactivation of military weapons of all kinds stored in Army depots throughout the U. S. in preparation for shipment to France, Britain and other Western European nations.

This tide of armaments will start moving next Spring if Congress approves the contemplated far-reaching military aid program.

Roper's Opinion Column Given Pitch By Paper

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5—The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette today dropped Elmo Roper's column.

In an editorial, the newspaper said: "On Sept. 9, Elmo Roper wrote: 'I am not going to stop gathering facts about this presidential election. But I am going to stop printing them unless something really interesting happens. My silence on this point can be construed as an indication that Mr. Dewey is still so clearly ahead that we might just as well get ready to listen to his inaugural address.'"

"On Nov. 1, Mr. Roper wrote: 'When on Sept. 9 I predicted a Dewey victory "by a heavy margin," I said that I would stop reporting percentage figures for "the race" unless some significant change took place. To my knowledge none has.'"

"On Nov. 3, shaking off the after-effects of Mr. Roper's and the other 'sleeping polls,' this newspaper took the pledge. We won't pay attention any more to 'scientific' predictions, and we don't think our readers will. So, Mr. Roper's column will no longer appear in The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette."

Total collections for this year are well above the approximate 10-month period of 1947. Collected so far is $180,992.79. At the same time last year it was $157,172.17, the treasurer reported.

Balance in the state treasury at the close of Oct. 29 was $263,995,123.52 with $44,353,295.68 listed as expenditures, it was reported by Ebright.

Marshall-Truman Parley Is Hinted

PARIS, Nov. 5—The possibility developed today that Secretary of State Marshall may return to Washington from Paris soon to discuss the current world situation with President Truman.

TOPANGA, Cal., Nov. 5—A swath of fire was roaring out of control down Topanga Canyon today, headed for the sea and leaving in its wake over 40 homes burned to the ground.

Six hundred fire fighters with 50 pieces of equipment were battling the Santa Monica mountains blaze but Deputy Fire Warden J. J. Davis reported that even partial control of the fire could not be established before late today.

Scores of the area's residents and fire fighters have been injured slightly since the fire began yesterday. Minor burns, cuts and sprained ankles were reported.

Many kinds of insects hibernate during the cold weather in barns and old stumps and tree trunks. Others deposit their eggs in the Fall and then die. The eggs or pupae hatch and emerge in the Spring.

mantle of the presidency after Franklin Delano Roosevelt died.

THE PRESIDENT, grinning widely, greeted his vice-president-elect, Sen. Alben Barkley of Kentucky, on the train's observation platform, as a crowd outside the station cheered approval.

Others who first greeted the man who was abandoned by the "experts" were AFL President William Green, Attorney General Tom Clark, and Sen. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The exultant celebration set off by arrival of the presidential train beat all hollow even the honors paid Mr. Truman and his family by farm and city throngs as the victory special rolled slowly eastward from Missouri yesterday and last night.

The President looked in the peak of health despite the grueling 30,000-mile campaign. He will leave Sunday for a two-week "swimmin'" vacation at the naval base in Key West, Fla.

But they are considered crack divisions, with well-trained and loyal troops under the command of Gen. Augustin Guillaume.

Along with three other combat divisions scattered throughout France and North Africa, they represent all that France has to hold the Rhine should a sudden war come.

IN ADDITION to agreeing to re-equip and maintain the three French divisions in Germany, the U. S. government has ordered reactivation of military weapons of all kinds stored in Army depots throughout the U. S. in preparation for shipment to France, Britain and other Western European nations.

This tide of armaments will start moving next Spring if Congress approves the contemplated far-reaching military aid program.

Roper's Opinion Column Given Pitch By Paper

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5.—The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette today dropped Elmo Roper's column.

In an editorial, the newspaper said: "On Sept. 9, Elmo Roper wrote: 'I am not going to stop gathering facts about this presidential election. But I am going to stop printing them unless something really interesting happens. My silence on this point can be construed as an indication that Mr. Dewey is still so clearly ahead that we might just as well get ready to listen to his inaugural address.'"

"On Nov. 1, Mr. Roper wrote: 'When on Sept. 9 I predicted a Dewey victory "by a heavy margin," I said that I would stop reporting percentage figures for "the race" unless some significant change took place. To my knowledge none has.'"

"On Nov. 3, shaking off the after-effects of Mr. Roper's and the other 'sleeping polls,' this newspaper took the pledge. We won't pay attention any more to 'scientific' predictions, and we don't think our readers will. So, Mr. Roper's column will no longer appear in The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette."

Business Zooms During Pumpkin Show Week Here

Sales tax receipts for the week ending Oct. 23, showed Pickaway County business volume to be on the rebound after suffering a setback of more than $1,000 during the previous week's report.

This was the week of the annual Circleville Pumpkin Show—a week some businessmen here claim "always is a killer of business."

Don H. Ebright, state treasurer, said total collections amounted to $4,886.87 for the week ending Oct. 23—a gain of $1,298.85 after the previous week's slump.

For the same week of 1947, sales tax collections in the county totaled $4,041.21 which is $845.66 under intake volume for the corresponding week of this year, Ebright said.

Total collections for this year are well above the approximate 10-month period of 1947. Collected so far is $180,992.79. At the same time last year it was $157,172.17, the treasurer reported.

Balance in the state treasury at the close of Oct. 29 was $263,995,123.52 with $44,353,295.68 listed as expenditures, it was reported by Ebright.

Marshall-Truman Parley Is Hinted

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The possibility developed today that Secretary of State Marshall may return to Washington from Paris soon to discuss the current world situation with President Truman.

There is speculation also that Marshall may confer with Mr. Truman about the secretary's expressed wish to retire.

Marshall's departure from Paris was foreshadowed when he advised the University of London that he cannot assure officials that he will be there Nov. 18 to accept personally an honorary degree to be conferred on him then.

Countywide Poll Registration Set

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—The Franklin County board of elections laid plans today for countywide registration of all voters, just as required in the city, in time for the next elections.

Frank Marsh, clerk of the board, explained:

"There was a time when, in the townships and smaller villages, everybody knew everybody. An election official in a polling place would know his neighbors. So many new thousands have moved into the townships, cities and villages, now without registration, it would be easy for a person to commit an election fraud by claiming he is a resident."

'Mass Quitting' Same As Strike, Workers Told

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner ruled today that "mass quitting" of jobs constitutes a strike.

AFL's International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was held guilty of conducting an illegal strike when 114 out of 115 workers quit their jobs on a Tennessee construction project within 36 hours.

The examiner, Arthur Leff, declared:

"The very fact of such mass quitting alone supplies persuasive evidence to support an inference that the cessation of work was the outcome of strike or concerted action aimed at a common objective."

Leff held that the union inspired the 114 electricians to turn in their resignations to enforce a secondary boycott which is illegal under the Taft-Hartley law.

The examiner said the boycott was aimed at compelling Roane-Anderson, which employed the workers, to stop doing business with the Kiser Electric Co. of Knoxville, Tenn., a non-union subcontractor.

EAC To Refuse Tell Future Latin Purchases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—The Economic Cooperation Administration moved today to prevent Latin American nations from gouging prices at the expense of the Marshall Plan.

ECA announced a new policy change designed to prevent most Central and South American countries from anticipating purchases under the foreign aid pact.

The agency said that in the future it will disclose that a purchase is being made in the "western hemisphere" without revealing the name of the country as it has in the past.

The order applies to all countries except Continental United States, Canada, Argentina and Brazil. European purchases are not affected.

It is understood that the action was taken as a result of reports that several Latin American nations increased prices on some commodities after learning that ECA gave authorization for purchases in their areas.

In effect the order will make it virtually impossible to figure out where future Marshall Plan buying will be made in the countries affected.

Countywide Poll Registration Set

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — The Franklin County board of elections laid plans today for countywide registration of all voters, just as required in the city, in time for the next elections.

Frank Marsh, clerk of the board, explained:

"There was a time when, in the townships and smaller villages, everybody knew everybody. An election official in a polling place would know his neighbors. So many new thousands have moved into the townships, cities and villages, now without registration, it would be easy for a person to commit an election fraud by claiming he is a resident."

'Mass Quitting' Same As Strike, Workers Told

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner ruled today that "mass quitting" of jobs constitutes a strike.

AFL's International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was held guilty of conducting an illegal strike when 114 out of 115 workers quit their jobs on a Tennessee construction project within 36 hours.

The examiner, Arthur Leff, declared:

"The very fact of such mass quitting alone supplies persuasive evidence to support an inference that the cessation of work was the outcome of strike or concerted action aimed at a common objective."

Leff held that the union inspired the 114 electricians to turn in their resignations to enforce a secondary boycott which is illegal under the Taft-Hartley law.

The examiner said the boycott was aimed at compelling Roane-Anderson, which employed the workers, to stop doing business with the Kiser Electric Co. of Knoxville, Tenn., a non-union subcontractor.

Another Police Chief Quits Job

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — Columbus Police Chief Charles M. Berry resigned late yesterday with dramatic suddenness, after he received a reprimand for trying to collect expense money from the city for $40 he spent entertaining friends in New York.

Berry said he handed in the resignation, effective Nov. 15, "because of my own physical condition which has been impaired by recent incidents, and because of unfavorable publicity I have received."

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 5 — Moscow-directed Communists were charged today by the United States ambassador to Argentina with responsibility for the recent series of revolts in Latin America.

Ambassador James Bruce made his unprecedented statement last night only 10 days after returning to his Buenos Aires post from Washington.

Although Bruce made no direct reference to revolutionary upheavals in Paraguay, Peru, Bolivia, Panama, and Chile, he asserted that the Communists have "an organized movement well advanced and aimed at destruction of the inter-American system of cooperation."

EAC To Refuse Tell Future Latin Purchases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — The Economic Cooperation Administration moved today to prevent Latin American nations from gouging prices at the expense of the Marshall Plan.

ECA announced a new policy change designed to prevent most Central and South American countries from anticipating purchases under the foreign aid pact.

The agency said that in the future it will disclose that a purchase is being made in the "western hemisphere" without revealing the name of the country as it has in the past.

The order applies to all countries except Continental United States, Canada, Argentina and Brazil. European purchases are not affected.

It is understood that the action was taken as a result of reports that several Latin American nations increased prices on some commodities after learning that ECA gave authorization for purchases in their areas.

In effect the order will make it virtually impossible to figure out where future Marshall Plan buying will be made in the countries affected.

PLAN FOR GERMANY

WHILE the Paris meetings pursue their stormy way, plans for a future government for Western Germany are quietly being formulated.

The German constitutional convention which has been in session at Bonn for over a month has drafted and turned in several tentative constitutions and its committees have submitted reports.

It is expected, too, that the occupation statute will soon be released, outlining the powers to be retained by the occupation authorities and those to be taken over by the Germans themselves.

With the establishment of a German state, the occupation authorities would probably retain control of education. Hope for a democratic Germany in the future is in the hands of the new generation, according to administrators there, making supervision essential. Such supervision would be in the hands of the commander of each zone, instead of being unified under the tripartite government, as would be the oversight of finance and economics.

It is hard to over-estimate the importance of these plans. Both economically and politically Germany is a key state in Europe. Her ultimate well-being and that of the continent as a whole may be vitally affected by the political, economic, and educational set-up now being evolved out of war-resultant chaos.

DEATH FOR CHURCHILL

"HE KILLED Winston Churchill." This might have been the claim to fame to an unknown if, during the war, there had seemed danger of the British premier's capture by the Germans. The former commander of the S. S. Queen Mary, Sir James Bissett, in a recent speech, told of the precautions adopted for the safety of his distinguished passenger. Always a special life boat stood by to take him off if the ship were sunk. And a man with a loaded pistol had orders to kill Churchill if he was in danger of falling into the Nazis' clutches.

Considering their reputation, this grim precaution was rational. The fate which Churchill planned thus to escape may have been that which befell Hitler, unless his death in the ruins of Berlin came by his own hand. Three eminent German field marshals, Model, Kluge and Rommel, took their own lives when things went badly. They may have thought death better than having to report defeat to an enraged Hitler.

Is it really true that when it was invented most people predicted the automobile would never be popular?

These Days

Coffee apparently is good for the soul and tobacco helps the American farmer. That is the philosophy which guides the Economic Cooperation Administration.

I once raised the question as to why ECA expends good American dollars on coffee and tobacco, since neither can contribute to the rehabilitation of Western Europe or China. Apparently coffee is a morale builder. So is tea. So are beer, coca-cola, whiskey and, for some, betel nuts. It all depends on the point of view. But what has that to do with rehabilitation? How many machine tools can be manufactured with how many tons of coffee?

This is the answer by D. A. Fitzgerald, director foods of ECA:

"As you know, there are some food items that play an important part in the diet and yet contribute little to basic nourishment. Many beverages fall into this category. This is especially true of coffee, which is a great morale builder... a thing much needed for European recovery... as well as contributing a great deal to basic eating habits and customs. In addition, if recovery is to be permanent, it must be world-wide and all countries must return to a peacetime system of commerce and trade and must participate in this recovery. Therefore, it is obvious that the buying of coffee from South America has the effect of indirectly bringing our very valuable neighbors into the recovery program since every dollar spent for coffee will improve multi-lateral trade."

It is the last sentence that is the important one. While we are passing money out to Europe and China, the Brazilians would like to get some as would the other coffee-raising countries of Central America.

So, instead of slipping them a few millions, we put it down as aid to Norway or Sweden or somewhere, but give it to them in coffee. Thus, they get the coffee, the Brazilians get the cash and Uncle Sam pays.

On the subject of tobacco, the explanation is different. There are two reasons.

"At the present time, the tobacco supplies in most countries in Europe are so inadequate that a widespread and serious black market in cigarettes exists which prevents the governments from realizing their normal revenue as well as keeping their peoples from more productive activities."

The second reason is political in the United States, namely, that tobacco-raising farmers want their markets restored. As the Europeans and Chinese lack the dollars to buy American tobacco, ECA comes to their assistance and buys it from the Europeans and Chinese, loads them down with it and pays for it. Thus, everybody is happy, except the taxpayer who wonders where his money goes. This is what Dr. Fitzgerald has to say about tobacco:

"It must be considered, of course, that Western Europe, prior to the war, bought considerable quantities of American tobacco, and on the basis of this demand, many farmers in the tobacco-growing states have made considerable investment in the facilities for growing tobacco, which cannot be effectively diverted to other uses."

"The European market is very important to these farmers, and appropriate consideration needs to be given this problem."

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"GRAN," SAID Brad sharply, when Alexandria accused Gail of becoming insolent.

But Gail broke in. "Never mind, Brad," she said, "and I don't think that's the word. I think you mean, sooner or later, I was bound to assert myself. Perhaps you consider that insolence, Mrs. Spencer. I don't. I'm sorry to cause trouble, especially for Brad. For years I tried to put my father out of my mind, refusing to acknowledge that he existed, hoping that he didn't, and resenting him, because of my mother and myself. Well, he does exist and I don't resent him because he has as much right to exist as any of us. I don't like what he's done with his life. I suppose it's partly selfish, wanting to see him correct it... as far as it can be corrected. Partly because of you and Brad," she added, "for very different reasons. But mainly because, whether I like it or not, I'm in this, up to my neck."

"I wash my hands of the matter," said Alexandria clearly. "Brad chose his own profession without consulting me, and I put nothing in his way... not that I could have," she remarked. "He married you without my advice. He was in a position to do so. If he chooses to abet you in this astonishing role of ministering angel, that's his concern and yours. Don't bother me with it, further. But," she warned, her black eyes bright, "if I am any judge of character, you won't find your extraordinary parent easy to manage. He's quite a realist, in his own way."

Brad rose. He said with finality, "Well, that's settled, then. I'll telephone Dr. Manners, and also Evans."

He looked at his wife. "What's your next step?" he asked.

She said, "I'll talk to my father today."

She did so, after luncheon, at which Alexandria did not appear, but sent Millicent down, probably to report any discussion which might take place. None did. Brad conversed amiably about Oak Ridge, the people, the climate, the astonishing setup. And after luncheon the car came around and took Gail to the hospital before going on to the laboratory.

"Good luck," said Brad, as Gail got out, and she stood a moment in the sunlight, looking at him, wishing cravenly that he would come with her. He would if she'd ask. He seemed to read her mind, as now and then he was able to, and added, smiling, "You'll do all right alone."

Getting out of the elevator, she was conscious of a steady sense of accomplishment. Every step had been difficult, but she took each on her own. Brad had backed her up, but had made no suggestions.

Rogers' nurse was sitting in the corridor. He rose as she approached the desk and she asked mechanically, "How is Mr. Rogers?"

(Copyright 1947, 1948, by Faith Baldwin Cuthrell. Published by Rinehart & Company, Inc.)

"We're fine," he answered, in the irritating plural. "He has a visitor, Mrs. Spencer... Dr. Evans left no orders about visitors and Mr. Rogers was insistent I contact the gentleman."

"Apprehension was cold in her flesh. 'What visitor?' she asked.

"A Mr. Meredith."

"I see." She hesitated a fraction of a second. She could go away and return later. But then she would never find out why... for neither her father nor Sam would tell her.

She nodded, went down the corridor, and knocked on the door.

Sam was sitting by the bed. He rose, looking concerned. She was evidently the last person he or her father expected. Rogers' face was a study in amazement and almost childish guilt. "You know each other?" he inquired politely. "Oh, of course. How stupid of me... Gail, my dear, do sit down. I hardly looked for you, twice in one day."

"That's evident," she retorted, and remained standing. She asked, "Sam, what are you doing here?"

"Your father sent for me."

Rogers said, "I retain the most curious recollections, in this instance, the name of my rescuer. He's in the telephone book, too."

"Why did you send for him?"

"To thank him, naturally, when I was more or less in my right mind."

Sam looked disconcerted for the first time since she had known him. He said hastily, "That's right, Gail."

"And I thought," said her father innocently, "that I might patch up what appeared to be a misunderstanding between you two young people... all my fault, and it seemed too bad, as you are friends of such long standing."

"Let's not play games," Gail said. "What did either of you expect to gain by this?"

"Don't be belligerent, it doesn't become you," Rogers said acidly. "Perhaps I wanted to keep Meredith apprised of the situation... just in case anything went wrong. The power of the press, you know, to say nothing of its freedom."

"Don't mind him," said Sam, "he can't help talking like a ham actor in the role of a conspirator. But it's like this—he seems to think that the Spencer interests are determined to shove him into a loony bin and he wanted—outside advice and interest."

Gail looked at her father without speaking, and he said uneasily: "Well, what of it? I have to protect myself. A lot of supercilious or unwelcome people have been rockaboyed into lunatic asylums, given enough money and influence back of the move. How do I know this place in California is what you say it is? It's a long way off."

"He's got something there," said Sam.

"You know Brad," Gail reminded.

ed him, "you were his friend. You know me."

"I thought I did."

She went on, "Do you seriously believe either of us capable of a thing like that?"

"Nope. But it was a way... to keep in touch."

She said, "There's no way. And I told Brad about the other night. I told him all of it."

Sam shrugged. "Well, as I've said before, you can't blame a guy for trying."

The door shut quietly.

Gail sat down, as she found herself compelled to do so. And her father said, "A dirty trick, wasn't it? But then, my mind works that way. And I thought, Suppose they railroad me. I haven't a chance. I couldn't even jump out of a window or off a train. Not that I'd want to... distasteful as most of my life has been. I'm too egotistical to relinquish it, God knows why."

She asked, "Do you believe that Brad would do such a thing to you?"

"No. I like your husband, in an impersonal sort of way. I believe he's an honest man. But I wouldn't put anything past that hardhearted of a grandmother—and I'm not so sure of you. So I sent for Meredith. Let's not fool ourselves. He'd be delighted to get something on your husband... and you too, I dare say. A legitimate beef, very humanitarian. Poor old man, whose worst fault is elbow-bending, homeless and friendless, craving affection, bought off by rich family with mere pittance and, once lapsed from grace, shunted into the limbo of the lost. A pretty picture, which seemed a form of insurance against incarceration."

"You mean that?"

"I got scared," he answered with the utmost and, she felt, most sincere simplicity.

An impersonal feeling of pity stabbed her, not alone for this man whose face was still a stranger's, who meant nothing to her emotionally, but for all men, for everyone in the world, everyone who must sometimes be alone and afraid.

She said gently, "It would not have happened, ever. And I'm here to ask a favor."

He asked warily, "What kind of favor?"

"Instead of a sanitarium in California, would you consider one nearby, in Connecticut?"

"Why," he asked, astonished, "what difference could it make, save in train fare, which is of no consideration?"

"I'd rather you were where I could see you."

His face came suddenly to life; it was young, it was interested, it was sharp with curiosity and unbelief.

"You?" he asked. "Why? Duty, a tract, a pound of tea? Do you think of yourself and of me in such terms: the good child, the erring parent?"

CLAYT CHALFIN

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—The time around midnight is a breathing spell. Off Broadway and in the side streets uptown and downtown, the movie houses are discharging their final crowds, and along the main stem the tourists are pausing for breath before beginning the last frantic hours of Making Whoopee.

The natives, like big game edging down to a salt lick, are beginning to drift over to the corner newsstands for the early morning tabloids. Trumpet players and drummers take a break, and stand on the sidewalk in front of their cheap little clubs, talking horses or football or record dates.

Up in the Bronx or out in Queens they are winding the clocks and putting out the cats, but Manhattan has a few more hours to go before pulling it a night. This might be called the pause that refreshes. Below 42nd street, Sixth avenue trickles off after dark into a collection of men's stores, little candy stands and a bank or two for a few blocks before emerging into Herald Square—a raggle-baggle parade of plate glass windows, clothing dummies and dark hallways.

It is along this dubious boulevard that you are dragging your feet aimlessly, now that midnight is here, and you are between 35th and 40th streets when you see the woman starting to take off her clothes.

She is middle-aged and lumpy and she has come out of one of the side streets like a blurred, mild little apparition, her hair straggly and gray and her mouth bright red with lipstick, the way old women in the city have of painting the lily.

SHE TAKES OFF HER SHOES FIRST. They are run over at the sides, and she puts them under her arm like a bag of fruit and wanders slowly up Sixth avenue, flexing her stubby toes against the cool concrete of the sidewalk.

A few yards along, she slips laboriously out of a kind of black bolero jacket. There are no sounds; there is no play-by-play. The fall winds skitter up these north and southbound streets with vigor, but she pays no never mind. The breeze comes across her creased, vacant face.

By one of the big wire trash baskets that mark occasional corners of the city's streets, she stops to hang the jacket over the basket and then slip slowly, mechanically out of her white blouse.

This midnight breathing spell has a tendency to blunt your reflexes and make your tired senses wobbly and unresponsive, so for a few moments you just watch the lumpy old woman, her bosom laced loosely in a soiled pink hammock.

The normal reaction would be to come forward and help her out of her fog, for she obviously has been derailed by alcohol or emotional shock from the travail of conventional living.

However, the scene is a strange, silent and slow-motion one, and all you can do for a little is stand still, wondering. There was no one within blocks when the charade began, but now out of the corner of your eye you notice that two or three souls have inched their way into the picture.

A guy and his girl: a wise one on his way uptown, with razor-sharp trousers and sideburns; a raggedy one who apparently had just beat his uncertain way down from the park behind the Public Library.

YOU ARE ABOUT TO STEP FORWARD and take her in hand, to talk sanity back into the ringing head if you can, she turns and faces the motley audience.

For a moment she stands there, head high and proud. Then slowly, haltingly, she turns her back on the people again. She reaches into the trash basket and comes up with a couple of pages of newspaper, which she puts carefully down on the sidewalk.

Then, stepping onto the paper with a reasonable facsimile of daintiness, she lifts one foot and starts putting her shoes on again. The rest of the costume follows, and in a little while she is as she was before the performance began, a dumpy, wavery old female, eyes glazed and unseeing.

Up the street she goes, toward the rumble and glare of the uptown lights, leaning heavily once or twice against a store window. The few people spread out their separate ways again, the wise guy shrugging and making circling motions at his temple, the raggedy one eyeing the departing hours meditatively.

In a little while the street is deserted again and you resume your aimless stroll, peering into the darkened shops at blue suits or neckties. The show is over; for a few moments there are disturbing little echoes going through your head, but you soon arrive at a newsstand and note that there were Three Killed In Plane Crash, and you are back among the living again.

Plans were made for future meetings and events scheduled by the WSOS. Tuesday the group will serve refreshments at the quarterly conference in the church with Circle No. 3 in charge.

The Rev. George Wilson, new district superintendent, will be here at that time to hear reports from all departments. Rev. Kneisley invited the entire membership to attend.

Woman's Society of Christian Service of Circleville First Methodist church met in the parsonage Thursday evening with Mrs. Elisha Kneisley and Mrs. Clarence Thorne as co-hostesses.

The group heard a discussion of Korea by Miss Carrie Johnson who used a lighted globe to outline the geography, history and missionary work being carried out there.

An amusing skit on preparing interesting programs was given by Mrs. Kneisley and Miss Letha Beavers. Mrs. Charles Rader, chairman of Circle No. 3, led part of the program. Devotional services were conducted by Mrs. George Haswell, followed by a poem, "The Door."

Plans were made for future meetings and events scheduled by the WSWS. Tuesday the group will serve refreshments at the quarterly conference in the church with Circle No. 3 in charge.

The Rev. George Wilson, new district superintendent, will be here at that time to hear reports from all departments. Rev. Kneisley invited the entire membership to attend.

ALUMNI CAGE LOOP OPENS

Circleville, Pickaway, Walnut, Monroe Top Foes

Following a somewhat fouled-up opening tilt, Pickaway Alumni Basketball League swung into a flourishing finish in the season opener in Fairgrounds Coliseum Thursday night.

In the opening encounter, Circleville grads, scheduled to play Scioto Township Alumni, found themselves handed a 1-0 forfeit and a pick-up game with Ashville grads when the Sciotoans failed to appear.

The Circleville aggregation was given a good workout with the Ashvillers, whipping them 18-8.

Circleville's lineup included former CHS varsity ballhandlers Leon Sims, Don and Bob Valentine, Bob Moon, Bob Steele, Bob Shaw and Junior Anderson, while Ashville's former stars included Gene Wilson, Lawrence Nance, George Forquer and Dale Schiff.

Don Valentine and Steele tied for Circleville scoring honors in the encounter with four points, while Nance equalled their scoring for his Ashville squad.

Highly-touted Referee Burney McGee proved his capabilities while officiating the match. Most of the players admitted he "must have eight eyes". McGee was given several rough moments on the floor as he tried to clear new rules and their resulting penalties.

JACKSON grads and Walnut Township Alumni fought to a near deadlock in the second contest of the opener, Walnut finally forging ahead in the final minutes to rack up a 24-21 win.

First half score of the contest saw the Jackson aggregation leading at 17-12, mainly due to the efforts of Francis Clark, Jackson center. Dick Weaver and Walter Bumgarner came back for the Walnuts in the second half, however, to give their squad the win.

Weaver was high point man of the game with nine tallies, trailed by his teammate, Bumgarner, and Jackson Forward Schooley, each of whom scored six points.

The next tilt, between Pickaway and Williamsport, was a runaway in favor of the Pickaway Townshippers, who copped one tilt 31-13. Bob Young of Pickaway earned high scoring honors with nine tallies, while Carl Schein scored high for the losers with a total of four.

Jim Picklesimer, winner of the 1948 Bob Bowshier Memorial Trophy, sponsored by The Circleville Herald in last Spring's county high school tournament, was blanked in the encounter, although turning in a good ball-handling performance.

Pickaway led by but two points at halftime with an 11-9 score, but a full second half added an additional 20 points while Williamsport could score but four.

In the last game of the evening, Monroe turned in the best team performance of the evening to swamp New Holland grads 40-24. Monroe swept the entire contest, posting a 16-6 halftime tally and carrying the lead through until the last horn.

Jack Hix was high scorer for the team and of the evening when he potted 14 tallies for his Monroe squad, trailed by his mate Carl Hildenbrand and New Holland's Ronald Stone, each of whom scored 11 points.

NEXT ALUMNI league games will be played in the Coliseum next Thursday, with the opener between Jackson and Williamsport. Walnut will take on Pickaway in the second tilt, Circleville plays Monroe in the third encounter and last of the evening's games will be between Scioto and New Holland. Gametime is set at 7 p. m.

All Alumni games are played in two 20-minute halves, no quarter break recognized.

Pitt Panthers Due To Arrive For OSU Tilt

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The Pitt Panthers were to pull into Columbus this afternoon and run through a light drill, along with the Bucks, before their non-conference game in Ohio Stadium tomorrow.

Ohio State Coach Wes Fesler cut his boys' practice time down to an hour yesterday—just about half the usual workout.

He said the Buckeyes were "very tired" from the 21-7 shellacking Northwestern handed them last week and that the rest probably would do them more good than a sweat session.

While on the field yesterday, Fesler drilled the Scarlet and Gray on pass defense and low tackling. Bimbo Ceconni did most of the hurling for the practice designed to stop a Pitt aerial attack that has netted the Panthers an average of 134 yards per game for the six contests.

On the tackling front, a low string was stretched in front of the tackling dummies and the Buckeyes were told to "get under it" before they made their kills.

$31 Million Bet In Ohio Mutuels

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The state racing commission reported today that mutual wagering in Ohio over the last year grossed $31,168,989—the third highest total in state history.

The gross bet included running and harness racing. Also ranking third in history was the state's tax on mutual play which added up to over half a million—or $555,618.

Commission records show that the best year for race track operators was 1946 when they gathered in $32,517,813.

The commission also reported that racing days this season totaled 455. That is on the basis of counting each race as a separate affair.

Pitt Panthers Due To Arrive For OSU Tilt

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The Pitt Panthers were to pull into Columbus this afternoon and run through a light drill, along with the Bucks, before their non-conference game in Ohio Stadium tomorrow.

Ohio State Coach Wes Fesler cut his boys' practice time down to an hour yesterday—just about half the usual workout.

He said the Buckeyes were "very tired" from the 21-7 shellacking Northwestern handed them last week and that the rest probably would do them more good than a sweat session.

While on the field yesterday, Fesler drilled the Scarlet and Gray on pass defense and low tackling. Bimbo Ceconi did most of the hurling for the practice designed to stop a Pitt aerial attack that has netted the Panthers an average of 134 yards per game for the six contests.

On the tackling front, a low string was stretched in front of the tackling dummies and the Buckeyes were told to "get under it" before they made their kills.

$31 Million Bet In Ohio Mutuels

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The state racing commission reported today that mutual wagering in Ohio over the last year grossed $31,168,989—the third highest total in state history.

The gross bet included running and harness racing.

Also ranking third in history was the state's tax on mutual play which added up to over half a million—or $555,618.

Commission records show that the best year for race track operators was 1946 when they gathered in $32,517,613.

The commission also reported that racing days this season totaled 455. That is on the basis of counting each race as a separate affair.

Circus To Winter At Fairgrounds Again This Year

Mills Bros. Sign Up For 2 Buildings

First Group Due Over Weekend

The circus is coming to town again but not to set up the Big Top and go through the regular routine of performances.

Mills Brothers Circus, for the second year in succession, has made arrangements to set up winter quarters on the Pickaway County Fairgrounds to house a part of its nationally known show.

The announcement was made Friday by officials of the Pickaway County Agriculture Society after completing negotiations by telephone and telegram with Jack Mills, head of the circus.

First contingent of equipment and personnel is scheduled to roll into Circleville over the coming weekend.

It is understood Big Burma, largest performing elephant in the world, again will undergo off-season training here.

Mills said recently that he would prefer to pay $1,000 and return to Pickaway County than quarter any place else free of charge.

It is known that Chillicothe was among many offers to circus officials offering to play host gratis during the 1948-49 winter season.

CIRCLEVILLE Chamber of Commerce spokesmen said the circus spent in the neighborhood of $10,000 with local businessmen while quartered here.

In all probability that figure will be exceeded this season since Mills Bros. are planning to expand the show and take to the road next year with a bigger and better program.

When quartered here, the circus will occupy the same two buildings in which it was housed last year.

One is the livestock and show building, second largest on the Fairgrounds.

The fair board is completing plans to accommodate any livestock shows and sales in other buildings on the lot.

Preliminary arrangements call for the circus to deposit with the agriculture society sufficient funds to cover rent and damage to the buildings they occupy.

Payment arrangements are said to be the same last year. That included $1,200 for rental and $250 grounds cleanup fee.

Rotarians Hear Developments In Dairy Breeding

Circleville Rotary Club members Thursday in Court-Main restaurant heard two speakers discuss artificial breeding of dairy cattle, one of the newer developments among breeders.

Here to speak before Rotary Club were Dick Kellogg of Columbus, with the Central Ohio Breeders Association, and Jim Courtright of Ashville, technician for the association.

Kellogg pointed out to his listeners that the program has spread into nearly every Ohio cattle herd. He said approximately 230 Pickaway County farmers are members of the association.

Along with the discussions, picture slides of the artificial breeding process were shown on a screen to better illustrate the subject.
